Graduates will demonstrate competency in the discipline of religious studies to include demonstration of knowledge of major methodologies in the study of religion and working knowledge of texts and sources in select religious traditions.

Graduates will demonstrate competency in using technology to assemble bibliographic materials and to present ideas by using PowerPoint and other multimedia tools.

Graduates will demonstrate competency in critical thinking through the selection, application and defense of methodologies in the examination of the social, intellectual, and spiritual dimensions of religion.

Graduates will demonstrate effective written communication skills by effectively constructing arguments, assessments, or descriptive accounts employing diverse information and relevant ideas in written form in the area of religious studies.

Graduates will demonstrate effective oral communication skills by effectively constructing arguments, assessments, or descriptive accounts employing diverse information and relevant ideas in oral form in the area of religious studies.

X=courses where outcomes are assessed/taught.